Betreff: Danish reply to the notification of the diploma in architecture from the University of Applied Science, Bremen/Hochschule Bremen, Germany

Dear Mr Zillmann,

Firstly, let me pass on the praise from our national experts in architecture, who found the German notification material for the diploma in architecture from Bremen exemplary clear and well arranged and found all the relevant information directly accessible both in text and table form. They hoped that the notification material for the Bremen diploma would serve as a model for the future German notifications.

Denmark has one question regarding the teacher/staff relation: It appears from the notification material that there are 10 professors, four research assistants, two other assistants and a number of tutors/assistants for 300-350 students. If this accounts for the whole teaching staff allocated to the educational course, then the number is marked below the student/teacher ratio known from other EU-notified diplomas?

Therefore we would like to ask, if the above mentioned numbers, is an expression of the whole educational staff?

We look forward to your reply.

Kind regards

Morten Andersen
